Staying on If you stay on, for any reason, you must contact the Hut Warden and pay for the extra nights. Please ask the hut warden to book you a bunk for the extra night in the booking system

Children All children under 16 must be accompanied by an adult.

Very young children (less than three years old) can be accommodated with some limitations. These are:

1. The safety of your family will be your responsibility. You need to be aware that the weather changes very rapidly up the mountain, and the trip from the car park to the hut and back can sometimes be in atrociously bad weather. In addition it is possible, though unlikely, that a fire alarm would mean evacuation to the other hut, possibly at night in difficult conditions.
2. Very young children are required to be booked in the booking system as per usual to meet DoC and health and safety rules. Maximum allowed in the Ruapehu Hut is 20 people.
3. Everybody expects a pleasant experience. We want parents of very young children to have a good experience, and as little stress as possible, and other members feeling that they can come to the mountain without being woken by crying babies. For this reason we request that parents with babies book into the Ruapehu Hut. It is warm and cosy, and safe as it does not have stairs. If you come down midweek, and there are few people in the A-frame, you are welcome to talk to the hut warden about staying in the A-frame instead. It is his decision. Naturally you can be with others in the A-frame for meals and chat if you wish.
4. We prefer that you come down midweek - this is the most likely time for the Ruapehu Hut to be empty. The hut warden will open the hut for you, and get the hot water going.
5. If all 3 bunk rooms occupied, do not come down. The hut booking system makes it easy to see how full the huts are.
6. The booking system makes it easy to see how old children are. If you see another parent with a small child has booked, you might like to contact them, and so share child minding and the like.

Guests Each member's booking may take up to four guests, accommodation being requested for them on the booking system. You must contact the booking officer if you wish to take additional guests. Members are responsible for their guests - inside and outside the huts during the whole of their stay and must ensure that their guests have appropriate clothing, torches, footwear and packs and must also remain resident in the hut throughout their guests stay.

Group Bookings A limited number of weekends and unlimited mid-week periods could be available for groups of friends and associates wishing to hire a whole or part of a hut. Please contact the Booking Officer for availability.
